CHARLES E. CLEVELAND
Principal

ABOUT FOUR YEARS AGO there appeared at Benson another large group of green Freshies. It was composed of about two hundred and ninety-five very young men who had just been released from grammar school, supposedly ready to shoulder the responsibilities of high school students. Because of insufficient training in the art of studying, many of the boys became capable dodgers of work, just slipping the first three years. In the last year, as a rule, they began to realize the benefits of the school, the good that comes from work, and the way they had shirked in the past. As a result, this last year was spent in a hurried effort to do four years work in one. As of course there are some exceptions, perhaps the case has been stated too harshly.

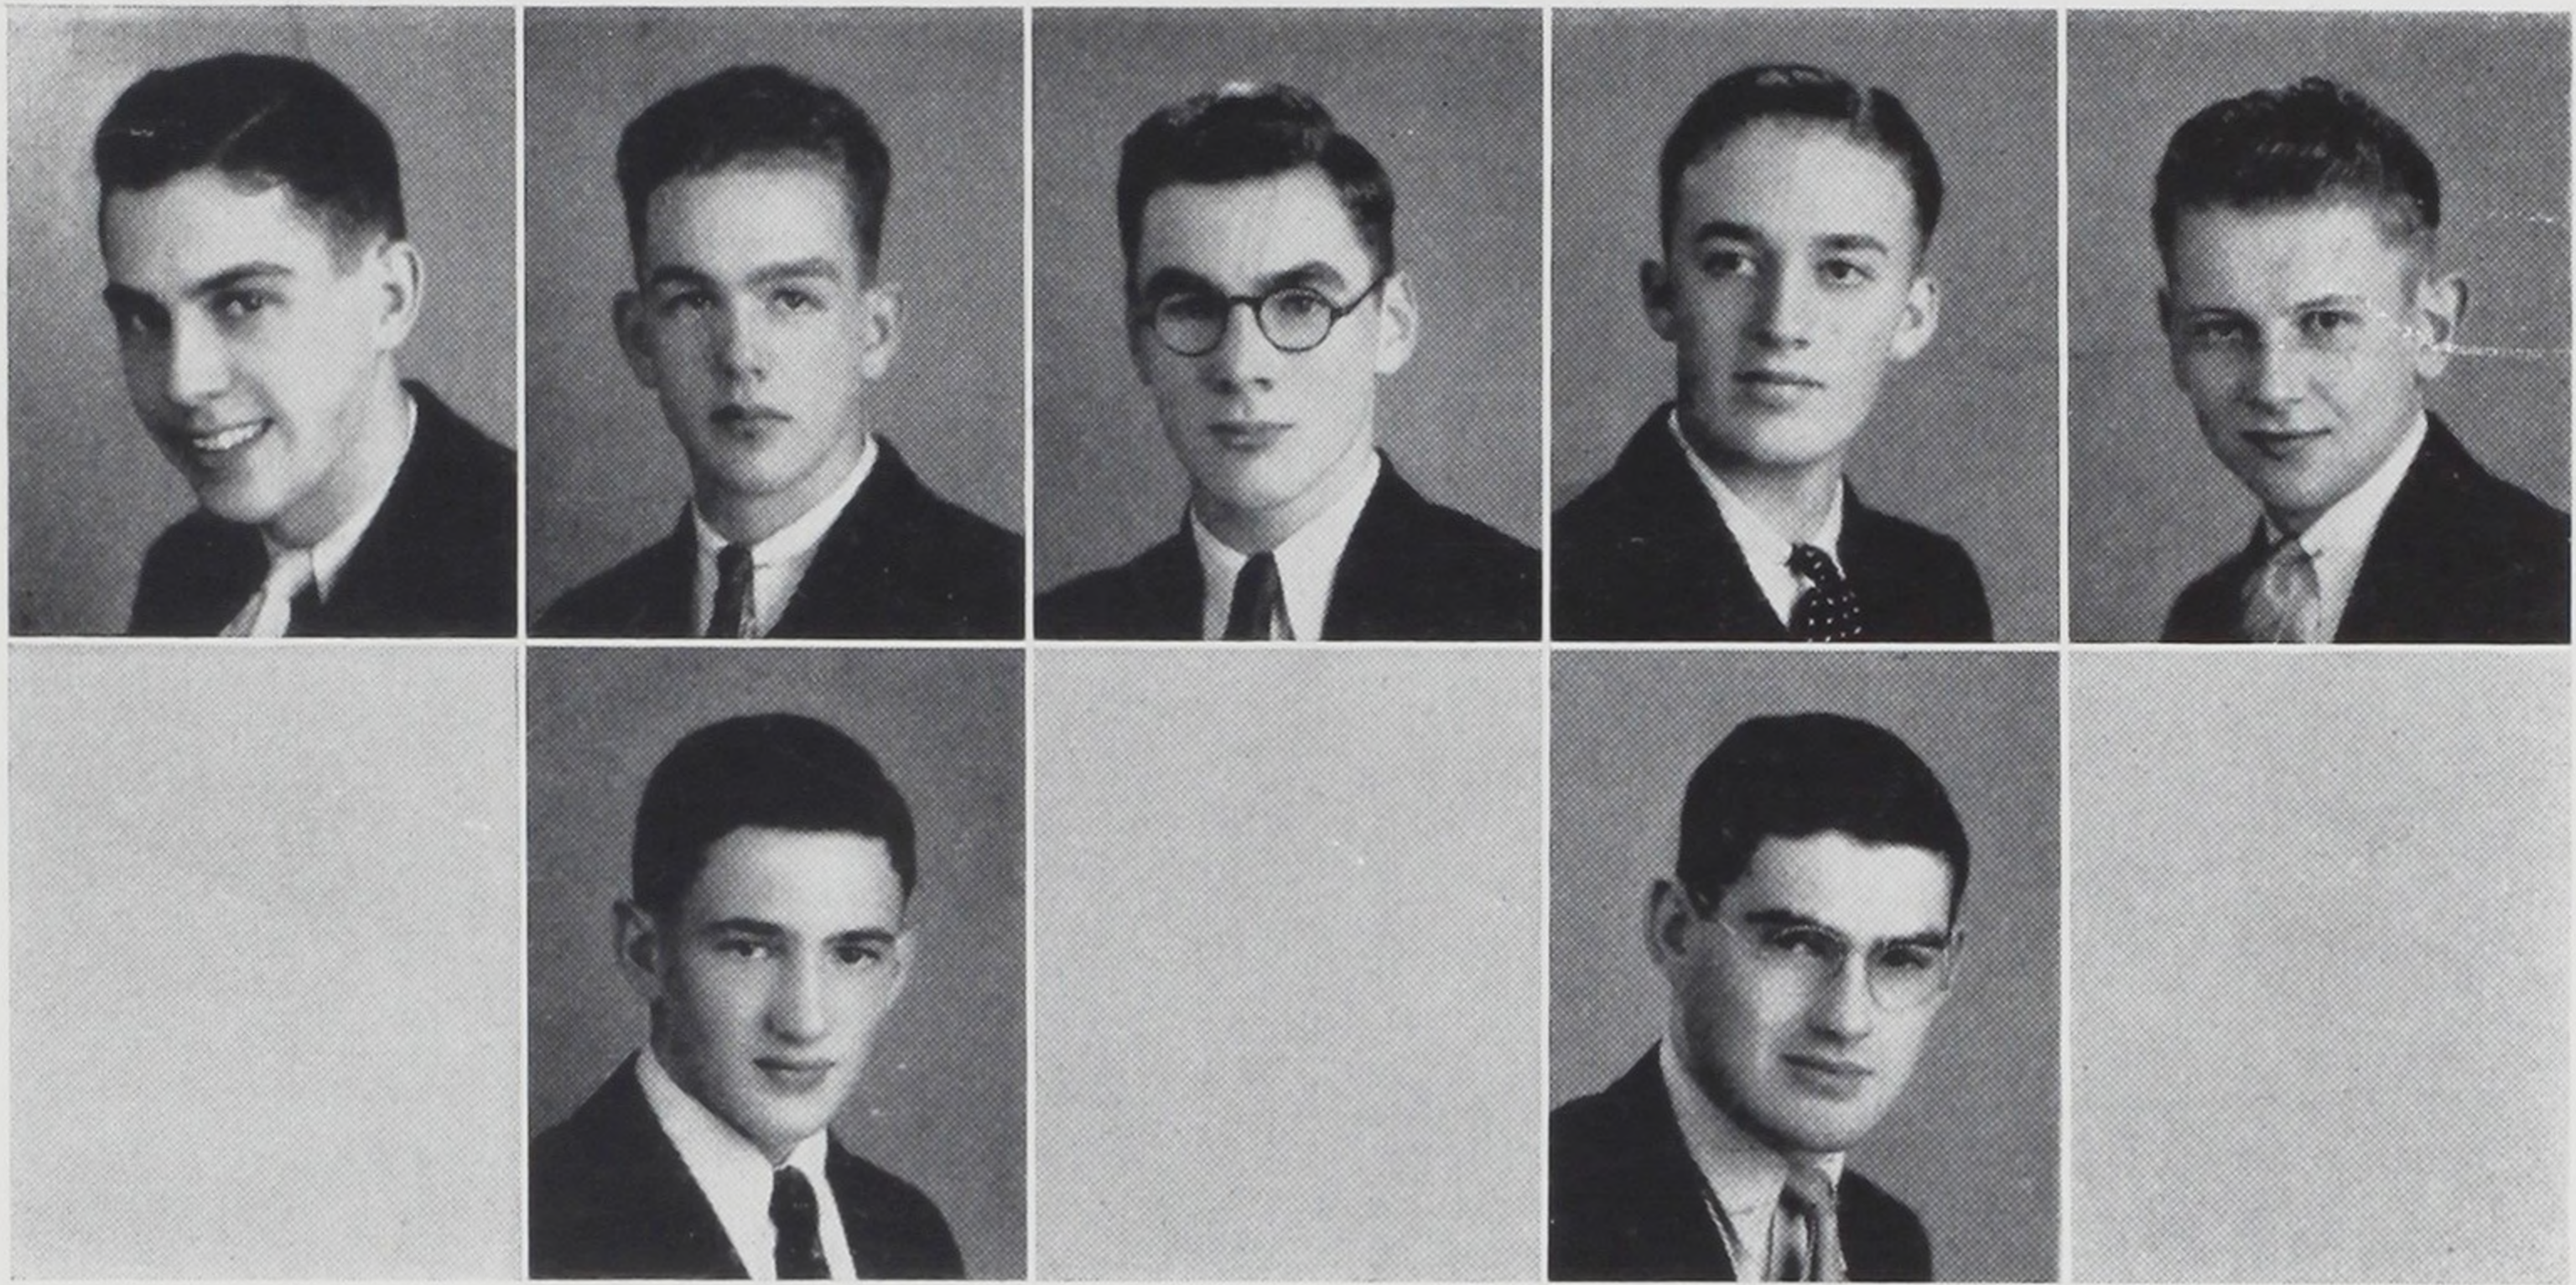

Participation in extra-curricular activities has been extensive. Many have been active in clubs, some having officered these organizations. Others have created names for themselves in sports, and still more have helped produce the Poly Tech and the class play. So you see, they do not entirely lack ambition.

Soon one hundred and thirty-seven of these boys—seventy-eight from the technical course and fifty-nine from the vocational course—who have been trained within the portals of this mighty school will be turned out to attend college or to work, following the instruction and guidance of other teachers and other leaders. May they have the best of success.

The Class Play

“THREE CORNERED MOON”

The January 1935 class presented “Three-Cornored Moon” by Gertrude Tonkonogy, a very charming comedy in three acts. The play, presented on December 14 to a large audience, proved to be a dramatic success.

In the first act we are introduced to the crazy Rimplegar family, headed by Mrs. Rimplegar who devotes her life to an effort to please her four grown children. When she loses the family fortune in a foolish stock market investment, the irresponsible family, who have never done anything but amuse themselves, are faced with the necessity of earning their daily bread. At the instigation of Doctor Alan Stevens, a good friend of the family, the four children, Kenneth, Elizabeth, Douglass, and Ed, show a willingness to work, but Donald, the young novelist engaged to Elizabeth, is too temperamental for prosaic toil. If there is a plot, it consists of the rivalry between the practical Doctor Stevens and the dreamy Donald for the hand of Elizabeth. The by-play is furnished by Kenneth’s telephonic struggles to subdue the flirtatious Kitty.

Before the final curtain falls we see the family emerge from the state of chaos and well on its way to self-support. Kenneth passes his bar examinations and secures Kitty’s promise to marry him the next day. Ed as a life-guard and Douglass as a saxophone player contribute to the support of their helpless but amusing mother. Donald takes himself off to find some other girl to mother him after Elizabeth, following the dictations of wisdom and affection, proposes to Doctor Stevens.

Miss Dorothy Cleveland who played Elizabeth and Miss Joeine Wood who played Kitty had carried important parts in previous class productions. Miss Betty Boucher, Donald McKinley, and Walter Krumbholz had been in the mob scene of the play which the preceding class produced. Miss Freddy Jane Welch made her initial appearance on the Benson stage in this drama. As usual Mrs. Doris Smith directed the play, and Miss Lydia Pliter assisted her.

ORGANIZATIONS

BY MAURICE C. HANSEN

To the freshmen, sophomore, and junior students of Benson Polytechnic School we seniors leave our offices and positions in the Student Body organizations.

During our years in Benson we have added new clubs and have done our utmost to improve the older organizations left to us by our previous graduates.

The organizations that have helped the Student Body Treasury, such as the Minutemen, Book Exchange, Cafeteria Board, and the Candy Stand have transacted much business, aiding such groups as the Tech Pep Staff, KBPS Staff, and the Library Council, and have done their part to keep the school property in order and to keep the students informed on the activities about the school.

Other beneficial organizations are the Fire Squad, which sees to it that the school is emptied in record time during the weekly fire drills; the First Aid class which takes care of the numerous minor injuries in a school of this kind; the Type-Hi club, which circulates programs and circulars; the lettermen's club, the Orange B, which sponsors the inter-shop athletic tournaments; the Band, Troubadors, and the Orchestra all constituting a vital part in Benson. Our interesting assemblies would lack much without these activities; the mechanical drawing students have formed two groups to further their knowledge along their chosen vocations. The Kumpus and Architectural clubs have long been active organizations in our school.

Hobbies seem to be very much in vogue today and Benson has many organizations to stimulate interest. The following organizations have been formed to further the knowledge of interested students in many and varied vocations.

ASTRONOMY CLUB

A large telescope was built recently and has received much publicity of which it is worthy. All work on it was done by members of the club and is a product of which any boy should be proud.

AVIATION CLUB

Always an active group, this club studies the more intricate and interesting phases of aviation.

B. A. E.

The study of engines and problems which are confronting the mechanics of today are discussed by the club members.

CAMERA CLUB

For many terms the Camera Club has been a very active group and small wonder, for fine work is turned out by these amateur photographers in their club projects.

CAVALIERS

Fencing is another popular sport. A group of students have organized this club and thus far have a very enviable record in their matches.

ELECTRIC CLUB

At their meetings and on many trips, the Electric Club members learn many interesting facts in the realm of electricity.

HI-Y

Although not a school organization, this club renders many services to the student body in any school project.

OYER-UN-GON

Many interesting hikes and trips are taken by this club to the many scenic spots of Oregon.

PUBLIC SPEAKING CLUB

Always a benefit to anyone, this club trains the members to speak correctly and easily in front of groups.

RADIO CLUB

The Radio Club is composed of a group of young men interested in radio as a hobby. Many of the members have their own short wave sets.

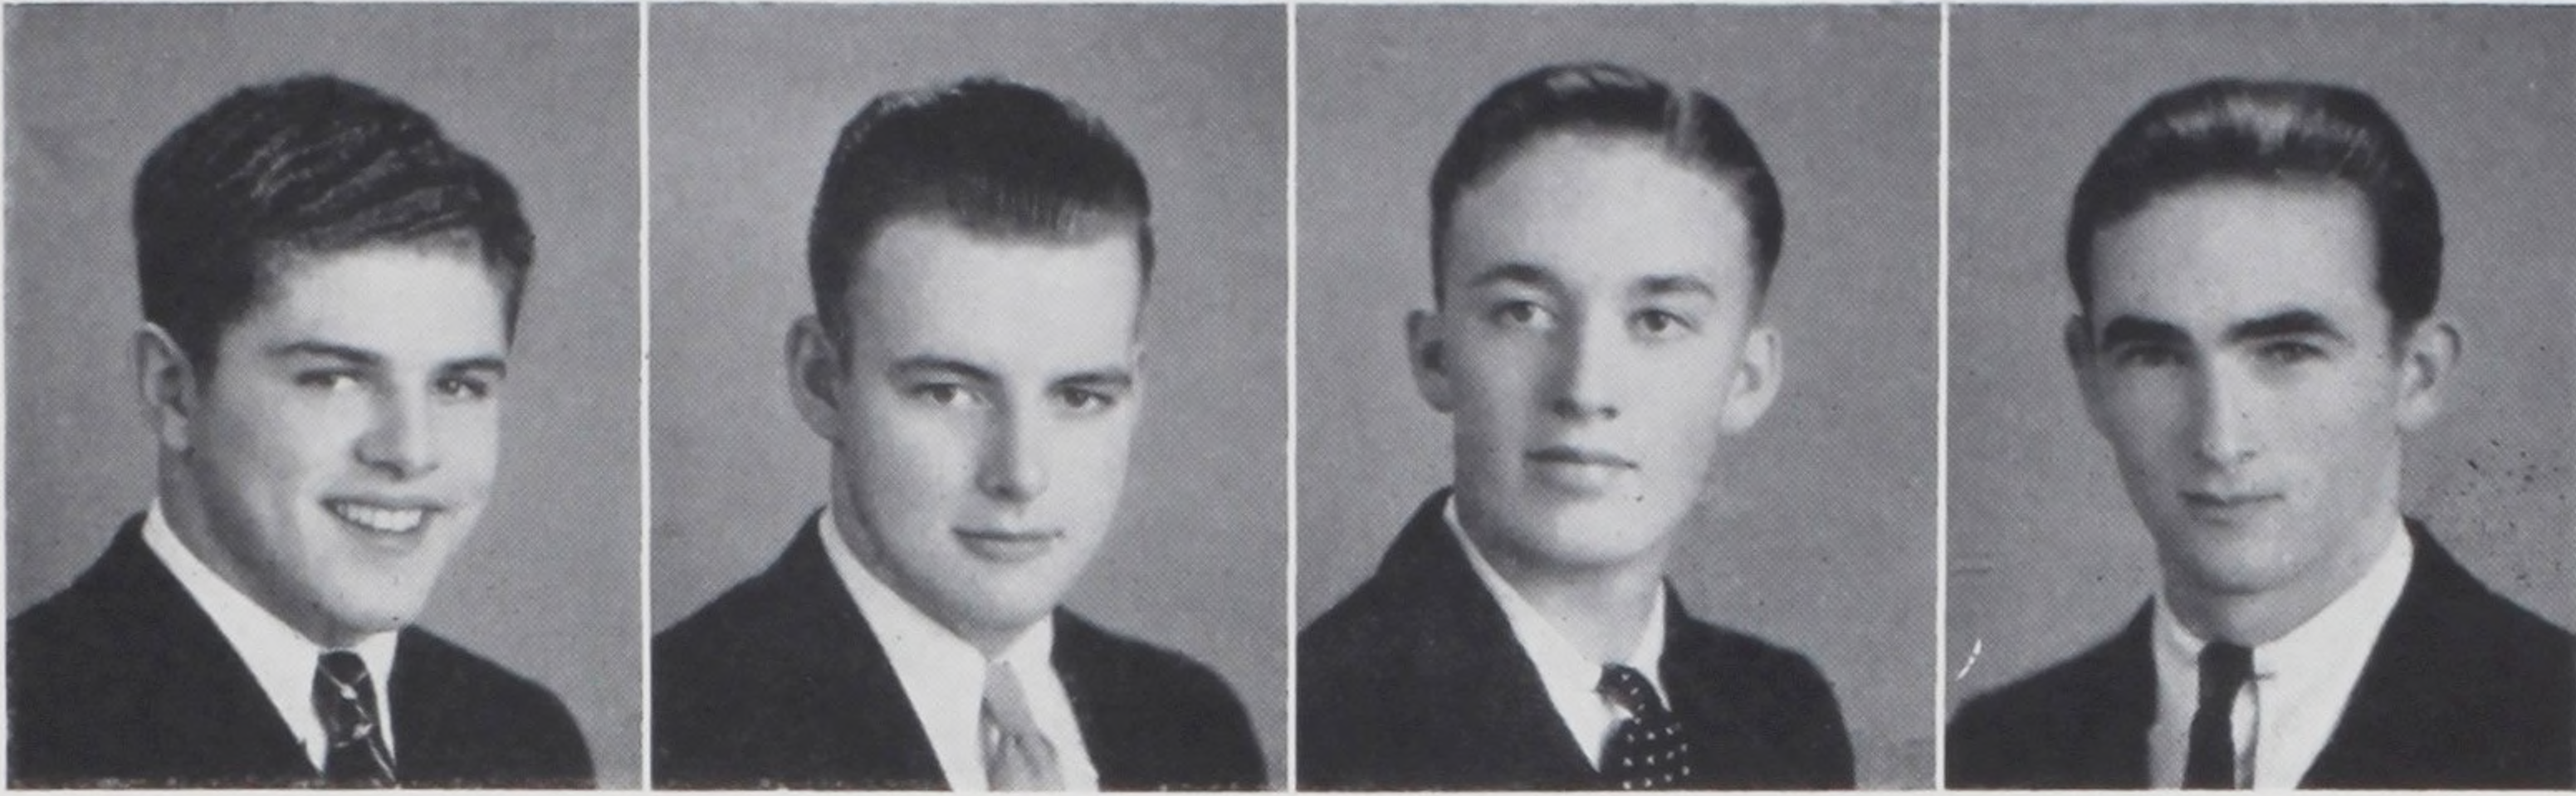

SAILING CLUB

Beside the weekly meetings, the Sailing Club has a large project under way, that of building a sailing craft, to be used on local waters.

TYPE-HI CLUB

This organization strives to create a better friendship among the members and to further the knowledge of printing in all ways.

With this variety of hobbies open to all students, the young men of Benson have a real opportunity to develop their various talents. It is a sincere wish of the graduates that the underclassmen will carry on the work that has been started so well.

STUDENT BODY OFFICERS

Benson students have enjoyed a very successful year, as far as student government is concerned, under the direction of George Balsiger, president of the student body. Balsiger was elected to the president's office of the Benson student body by a large majority and throughout the term he had the hearty support of all Benson students.

Assisting Balsiger in his duties were Robert Selby, vice-president; Jack Brown, secretary; and Fred Toomey, treasurer. All of Balsiger's assistants performed their duties in an admirable way besides taking on several activities not required.

Two of those holding the main offices of the student body, Jack Brown and Fred Toomey, are members of the Jan. '35 class and upon graduation will have completed an interesting and active career in Benson.

FOOTBALL

Although hard hit by ineligibility, the Benson football squad, in their 1934 debut, rolled up the best winning percentage made by a Benson football team for the past two years. Under their new coach, "Skippy" Stivers, the Techmen chalked up three wins to four setbacks. Towards the mid season the Benson squad were forced to forfeit the games with Franklin and Commerce when Herbert Dennis, sub at guard, was found to be over the 20-year limit.

Benson 6 Jefferson 19

The Benson squad opened their season with a 19-6 defeat at the hands of the Jefferson Hi eleven. Ben Ell's line plunging spelled poison for the Techmen as the fast stepping Jefferson backfield ace went over for all three Demo touchdowns and converted once to score the entire 19 points. Since both Ell, Jefferson backfield ace, and Herb Dennis, Tech guard, were found ineligible later, the game went down in league books as no contest.

Benson 0 Grant 6

In their second league game the Techmen outplayed the Grant Generals three full quarters only to be nosed out by a 6-0 score. From the end of the first quarter till the final whistle the Benson backfield literally tore the Grant line to shreds only to be thrown back by the Generals when they were within scoring distance.

Benson 13 Commerce 0

Winning their first game in their 1934 schedule, the Techmen took an undisputed 13-0 victory over the Commerce Stenogs. Russ Baker went over for both Benson scores. This game was first of two victories to be forfeited by the Techmen by a 1-0 score.

Benson 23 Franklin 0

Outplaying the Franklin Quakers in every department of the game, the Benson Grid-sters piled up one of the largest scores to be made by any team in the Prep League for 1934. The game was featured by an eighty-yard sprint by Dave Gammon, all-city half. Gammon received the ball on a punt on his own twenty and galloped the entire length of the Multnomah gridiron behind beautiful interference by Russ Baker and Kenneth Lunday to score one of the three touchdowns made by Benson. This game was the last to be forfeited by a 1-0 score.

Benson 6 Washington 7

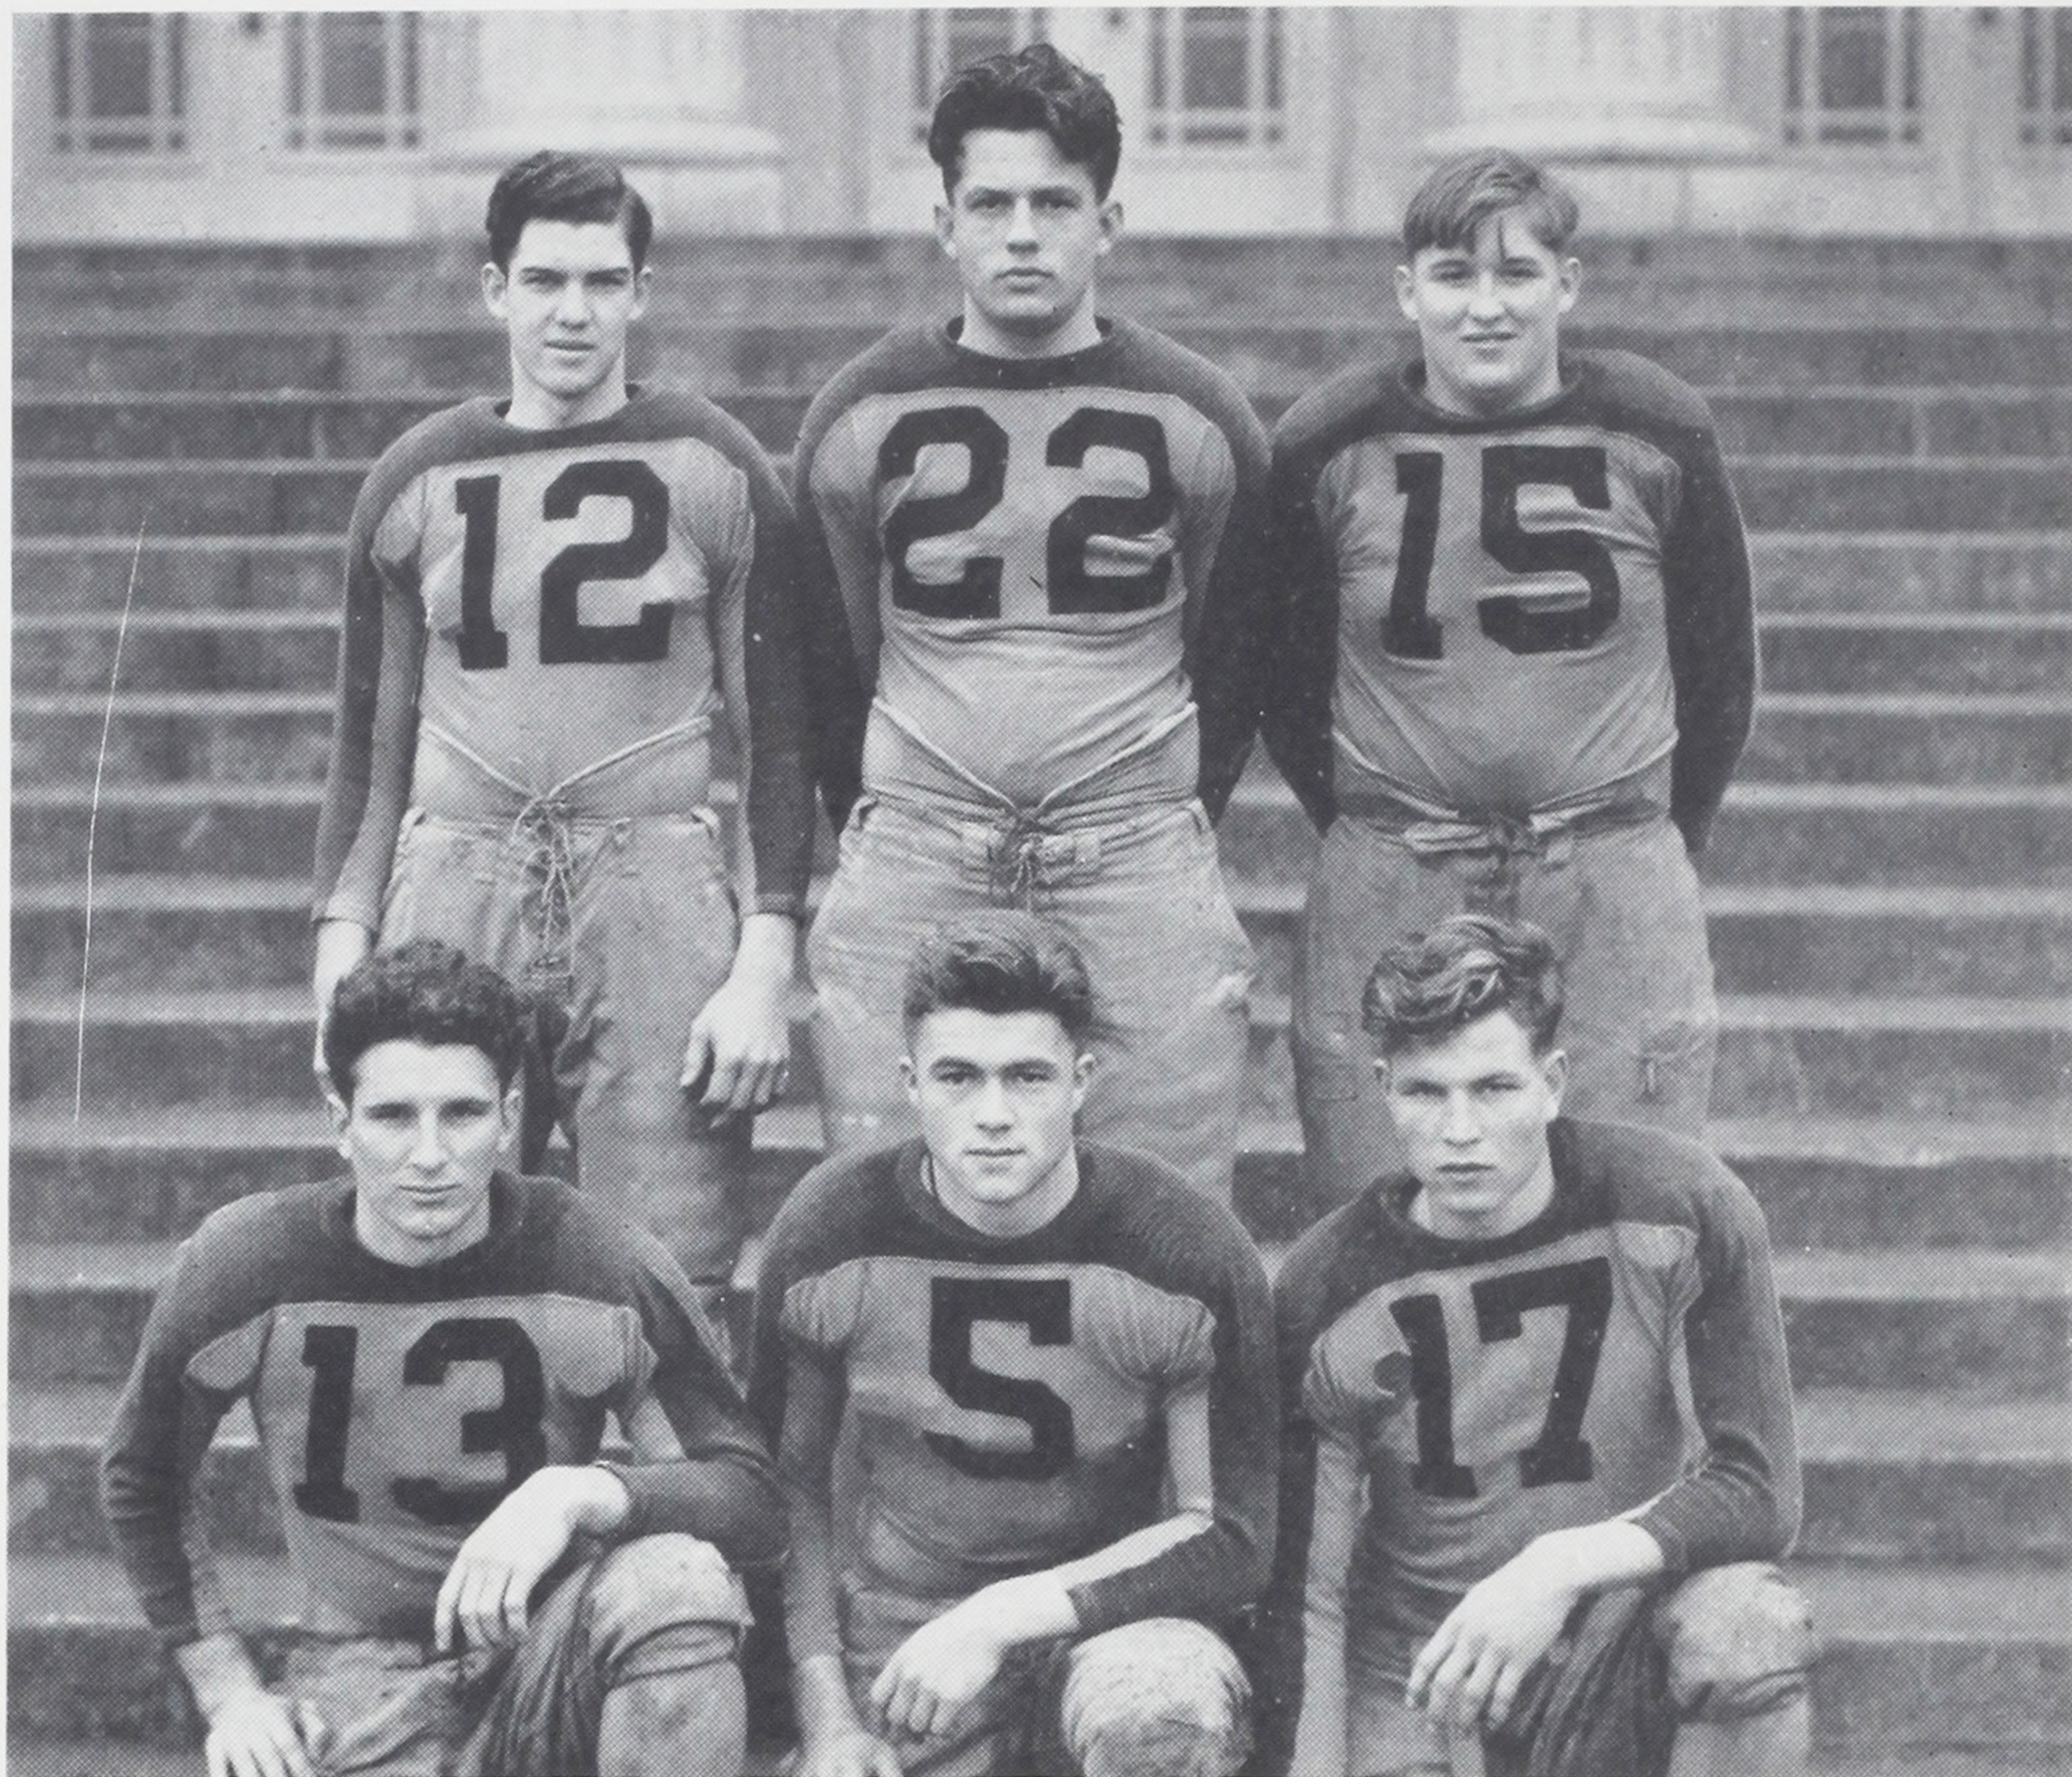

Playing their best brand of ball, the Tech gridiron team went down to a 6-7 defeat at the hands of the highly touted Washington team, who incidentally won their second straight prep league football title. An intercepted pass by Russ Baker plowed the way for the lone Tech touchdown. Numerous plunges toward pay dirt by the Techmen were stopped when the Techmen got near the Colonial goal line.

Benson 6 Roosevelt 0

In the sixth game the Benson squad threw a bombshell into the Prep league in the form of a 6-0 win over the Teddies of Roosevelt. The loss literally killed all chances for Roosevelt to take the high school football title thus giving all title honors to the Washington Colonials. This was the only game marked on the League books as a Benson victory.

Benson 0 Lincoln 12

The Techmen closed the Prep League games with a 12-0 defeat administered by the Lincoln Hi eleven. Baffled by end around and passing plays the Techmen were helpless at the hands of the Cards. In only the first half did the Techmen show their winning ability. The game was the last on the Benson schedule and that of the Prep League for 1934.

SENIOR FOOTBALL

First Row—Vielhauer, Whitney, Abbott
Second Row—Lunday, Leitzel, Ristig

Senior Football Members

Seven members of the January '35 graduating class have played their last game on a Benson football eleven. The seven to part from the Benson gridiron are George Abbott, Wilson Innocenti, Ammon Leitzel, Kenneth Lunday, James Ristig, Jack Vielhauer, and Boyd Whitney.

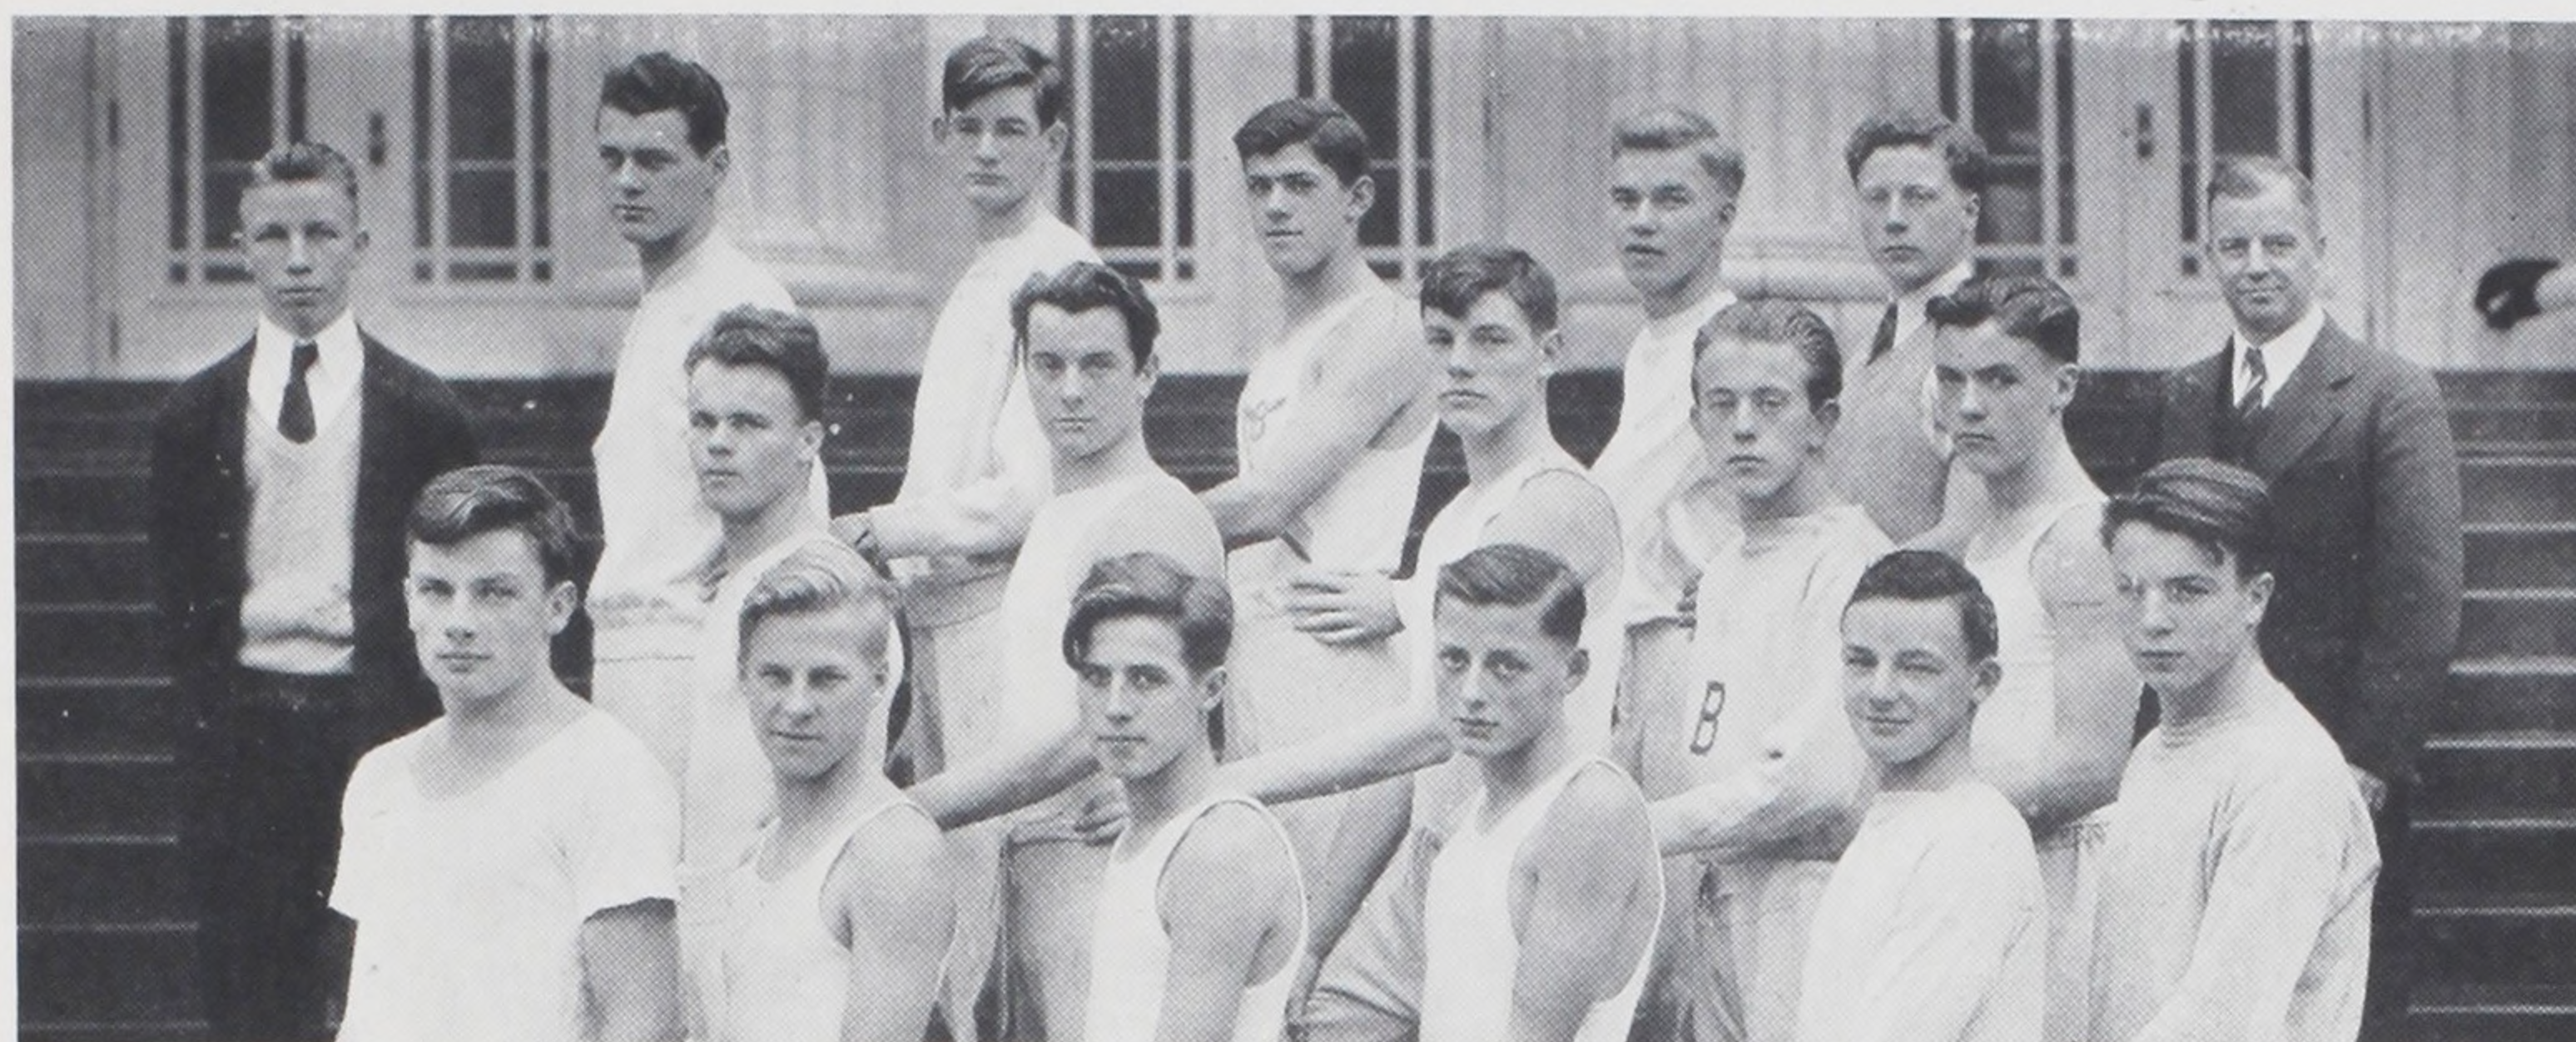

Of these seven, Boyd Whitney, two-year letterman at guard and captain of the '34 squad, stands out as being the most valuable to the team. In the 1933 season Whitney fell short of making all-city by a very small margin, but his playing during the past season marked him as one of the best guards, if not the best, in the city. He was picked by three local dailies on their all-cities.

George Abbott, another Tech to be picked by the majority of sports writers as an all-around end, ended his playing career this past season establishing a record only passed Leonard Linde of Lincoln. Abbott's ability to block out interference on long runs made by Tech ball packers, and the speed in which he covered punts was one of the most discussed topics of the football year.

Kenneth Lunday, who is said to be the best blocking back in the prep league, is another regular to be sadly missed when the call is made next year for football by Coach Stivers. Behind the blocking and interference of Lunday and Abbott, Tech ball packers usually went to town. Lunday also held the ball on kick conversions.

Graduation hit the Benson line rather hard. Besides Whitney and Abbott, Coach Stivers will lose the services of two regular linemen in the persons of Ammon Leitzel and Jack Vielhauer, who along with Whitney formed the regular guard positions. James Ristig, one of the heaviest men on the squad, who was used as a reserve last season is another gridster to be missed from Benson portals. Wilson Innocenti, backfield reserve, is also on the graduating list.

First Row—Froude, Giese, Ross, Sinner, Steiff, Smead
 Second Row—Springer, A. Cereghino, Peterson, E. Cereghino, Murdock
 Third Row—Ivanick, Tinker, Keranen, Schlottman, Amsberry, Claus, Mr. Hargreaves

Cross Country

Thirty-five aspiring students answered Mr. Hargreaves' call last fall when cross-country season began. Among these were three lettermen from last year's powerful team. They were Toomey, Froude, and Amsberry. With these veterans as the nucleus, Coach Hargreaves formed a squad that won one and lost two regular meets and then finished in fourth place in the state meet, in which about 125 runners from all over the Northwest participated.

Benson's first meet was run against Milwaukie, last year's champions. Milwaukie won with the score 26 to 177. In cross-country the low score wins.

In the second meet of the season Benson runners began to show their real strength. They trounced the always powerful Hill Military squad on their own course by the score of 40 to 97.

The closest match of the whole season was the one run against Washington High. Washington barely nosed out Benson with the score 51 to 54.

Jefferson High won the Northwest meet with 35 points. Milwaukie finished second and Washington third. Benson got fourth place with 98 points. This important meet was run on a course that was nothing more than mud the whole distance. The participants finished in a driving rain. In spite of the elements the runners made very good time. Storli, Amsberry, E. Cereghino, Froude, A. Cereghino, Sinner, and Ross finished for Benson in the order named. These boys with the addition of Gilpin, who ran in the Washington meet, won their letter.

Toomey, Froude and Amsberry are graduating this year and Coach Hargreaves will lose three of his best runners.

Next year's team should be very good with many veterans returning. Also these boys should make good distance runners for track this spring.

Radio Short Shots

Bong! Good Morning! (or good afternoon as the case may be) you are listening to station KBPS the Benson Polytechnic School for boys in Portland, Oregon. You might think that up here in Benson's attic with nothing to do but watch the meter needles flicker or to lean over every once in a while and tell the 'mike' that, "This is Station KBPS located in Portland, Oregon," would make time hang heavy on our hands. But we of the KBPS staff find otherwise. There is always some diversion or some situation, humorous perhaps, cropping up to keep us interested and on the alert.

Now, for example, the other day we were broadcasting the assembly program the central attraction of which was the Deep River Plantation Singers and we were glad to broadcast their singing, but, you remember that clapping and those sudden shouts with which they accented their songs? Well, the first two or three times they did this—oh boy! did the sparks fly, but we finally learned how to catch these sudden surges of sound and to cut them down with the volume control; we had to watch also for the loud applause at the end of each number.

Another time I was called upon to read an article on 'The Care of Babies' (what next!) and at the conclusion of it wanted one of the other operators to ring the gong for the regular fifteen minute station announcement; I gave the usual signal with my hand and nothing happened; then I looked up and found that one fellow was deeply imbedded in a technical article in a radio magazine, while the other was close to the snoring point with his mouth wide open! It was hard to keep up a flow of talk, free from laughter, but we had a slightly muffled station announcement, with no gong, at that.

Our broadcasts of sport events are sometimes attended by difficulties. Take football games, for instance. Our broadcasting booth way up on top of Multnomah Stadium looks like an enviable position. Perhaps it is in some respects, but when there are fifty pounds or so of batteries and radio apparatus to be transported from street level to booth, well—you would just as soon have a nice seat in the bleachers or stands.

Then there are the radio code classes. These classes start with beginners and teach them the International, Morse or Continental code, and as far as we have discovered are the chief source of fan mail our station has. All this makes it doubly interesting to the operator who instructs or teaches these classes to his unseen student body. Besides after you've taught one or two times you can't leave off; I mean you're in the middle of something YOU have started and the feeling is that YOU have to finish it even if no one does listen to it.

Our station (ours because it is owned and operated by the Student Body of Benson) is non-commercial. The programs are, for the most part, educational. At any rate, we try to put out over the air programs both interesting and constructive. But I'll get off the air now and hope you'll tune in again sometime Station KBPS signing off. BONG!

Detective Tontz's Greatest Case

Clifford Shankland

It was in the summer of December 1934 A. D. that the master detective, Bob Tontz, received his most important case. He was sleeping (pardon me, I mean working) at his desk when the telephone suddenly rang.

"Hullo," said Tontz, lifting the receiver.

Hello, this is patrolman Fitzwater speaking. I've just found a dead man."

"You what?" cried Tontz, as he brought his feet off his desk with a thud. "Where?"

"He's in an apartment house at 92nd and Division, apartment 13."

"Don't touch anything, and don't let anyone in. I'll be right over. So long. Now where in the dickens did I put my hat? Where's my hat? Say, lieutenant have you seen my hat?"

Yes, you've got it on."

"Oh," said Tontz. Whereupon he hurried out to his powerful police car, (a 1924 model T Ford) and started for the scene of the crime. He roared across town at the terrific rate of 20 miles an hour, but stopped at 60th street for an hour to swell a flat tire. However, he finally arrived at the apartment house and rushed up the stairs to number 13.

"Where's the body," he cried, as he entered the room, and then he fainted when his eyes fell upon the gruesome object in the center of the room. (the weakling, I guess he couldn't take it)

Patrolman Fitzwater ran out to the kitchen and got a glass of water which he threw in the detective's face.

"Wh-where am I? What happened?" said Tontz, when he regained consciousness, and then he remembered. He got up and wobbled shakily across the room to the body. After a careful and thorough examination which lasted about half an hour, he turned to the patrolman and said, "Hm, this fellow's been shot 29 times, stabbed 11 times, hit with a gas-pipe 3 times, his right arm's been cut off, and 4 ribs are broken. I suspect foul play. Now, Fitzwater, let's have the facts. How did you come to discover this?"

"Well, captain, I was walking on the other side of the street, doing my beat, when I heard somebody over here scream for help. I rushed over and found the landlady out here in the hall yelling her head off. She pointed to this room, so I went in. I just took one look and then rushed downstairs to call you. That's all I know."

"Where's this landlady?"

"She's downstairs in her room."

"Well, go get her and bring her up here. I want to talk to her. While you're doing that I'll be looking around."

While he was waiting for the landlady, Tontz examined the room, but not for very long, for Fitzwater soon returned with the woman. He introduced her as Mrs. Hutton, and offered her a chair.

"Now, Mrs. Hutton," said Tontz, "tell us what you know about this affair."

"Well, sir, I don't know very much. Mr. Darrow. that's his name, always left for work at about 7:30, but this morning he didn't. I thought something was wrong, but I waited until 9:00 before I investigated. I went to his door and knocked, but received no answer so I tried the knob. It was unlocked and I went in. When I saw that, I screamed and ran out into the hall. This officer came, and I went down to my room, where I've been until just now."

"Did this fellow have any callers lately?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Hutton, "he had two last night."

"Oh, he did, did he? Well, now we're getting someplace. (I hope) Can you describe them?"

"Well, one of them was about 5 ft. 8 in. tall, and probably weighed about 160 pounds. He was very tough-looking and had a long scar on his right cheek. The other was about 6 ft. tall, weighed about 150 pounds, and was very good-looking. He was wearing a tuxedo and a derby hat."

"Do you know their names?"

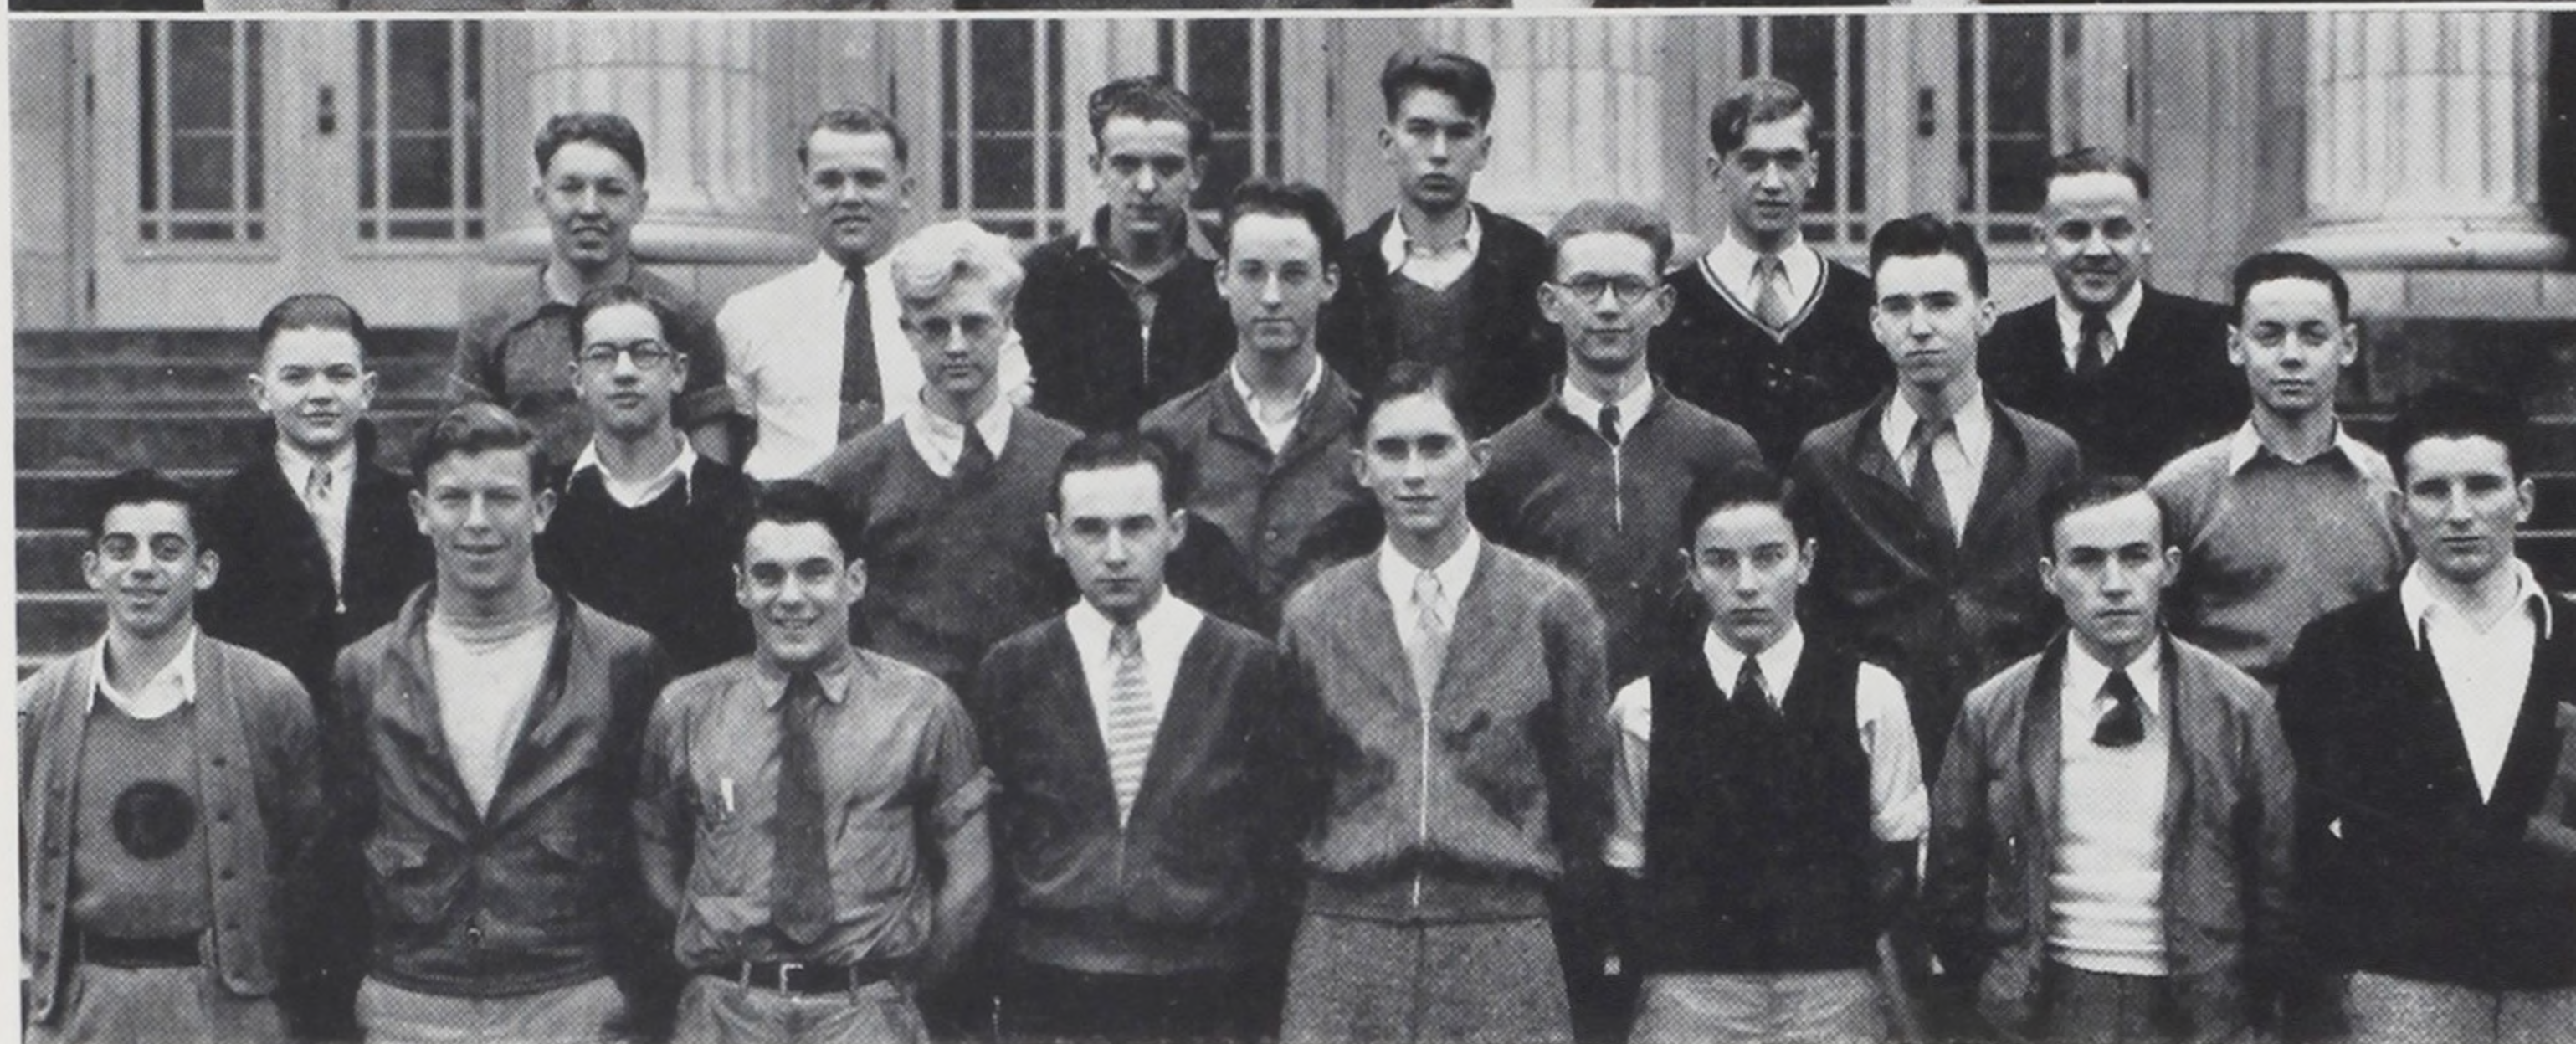

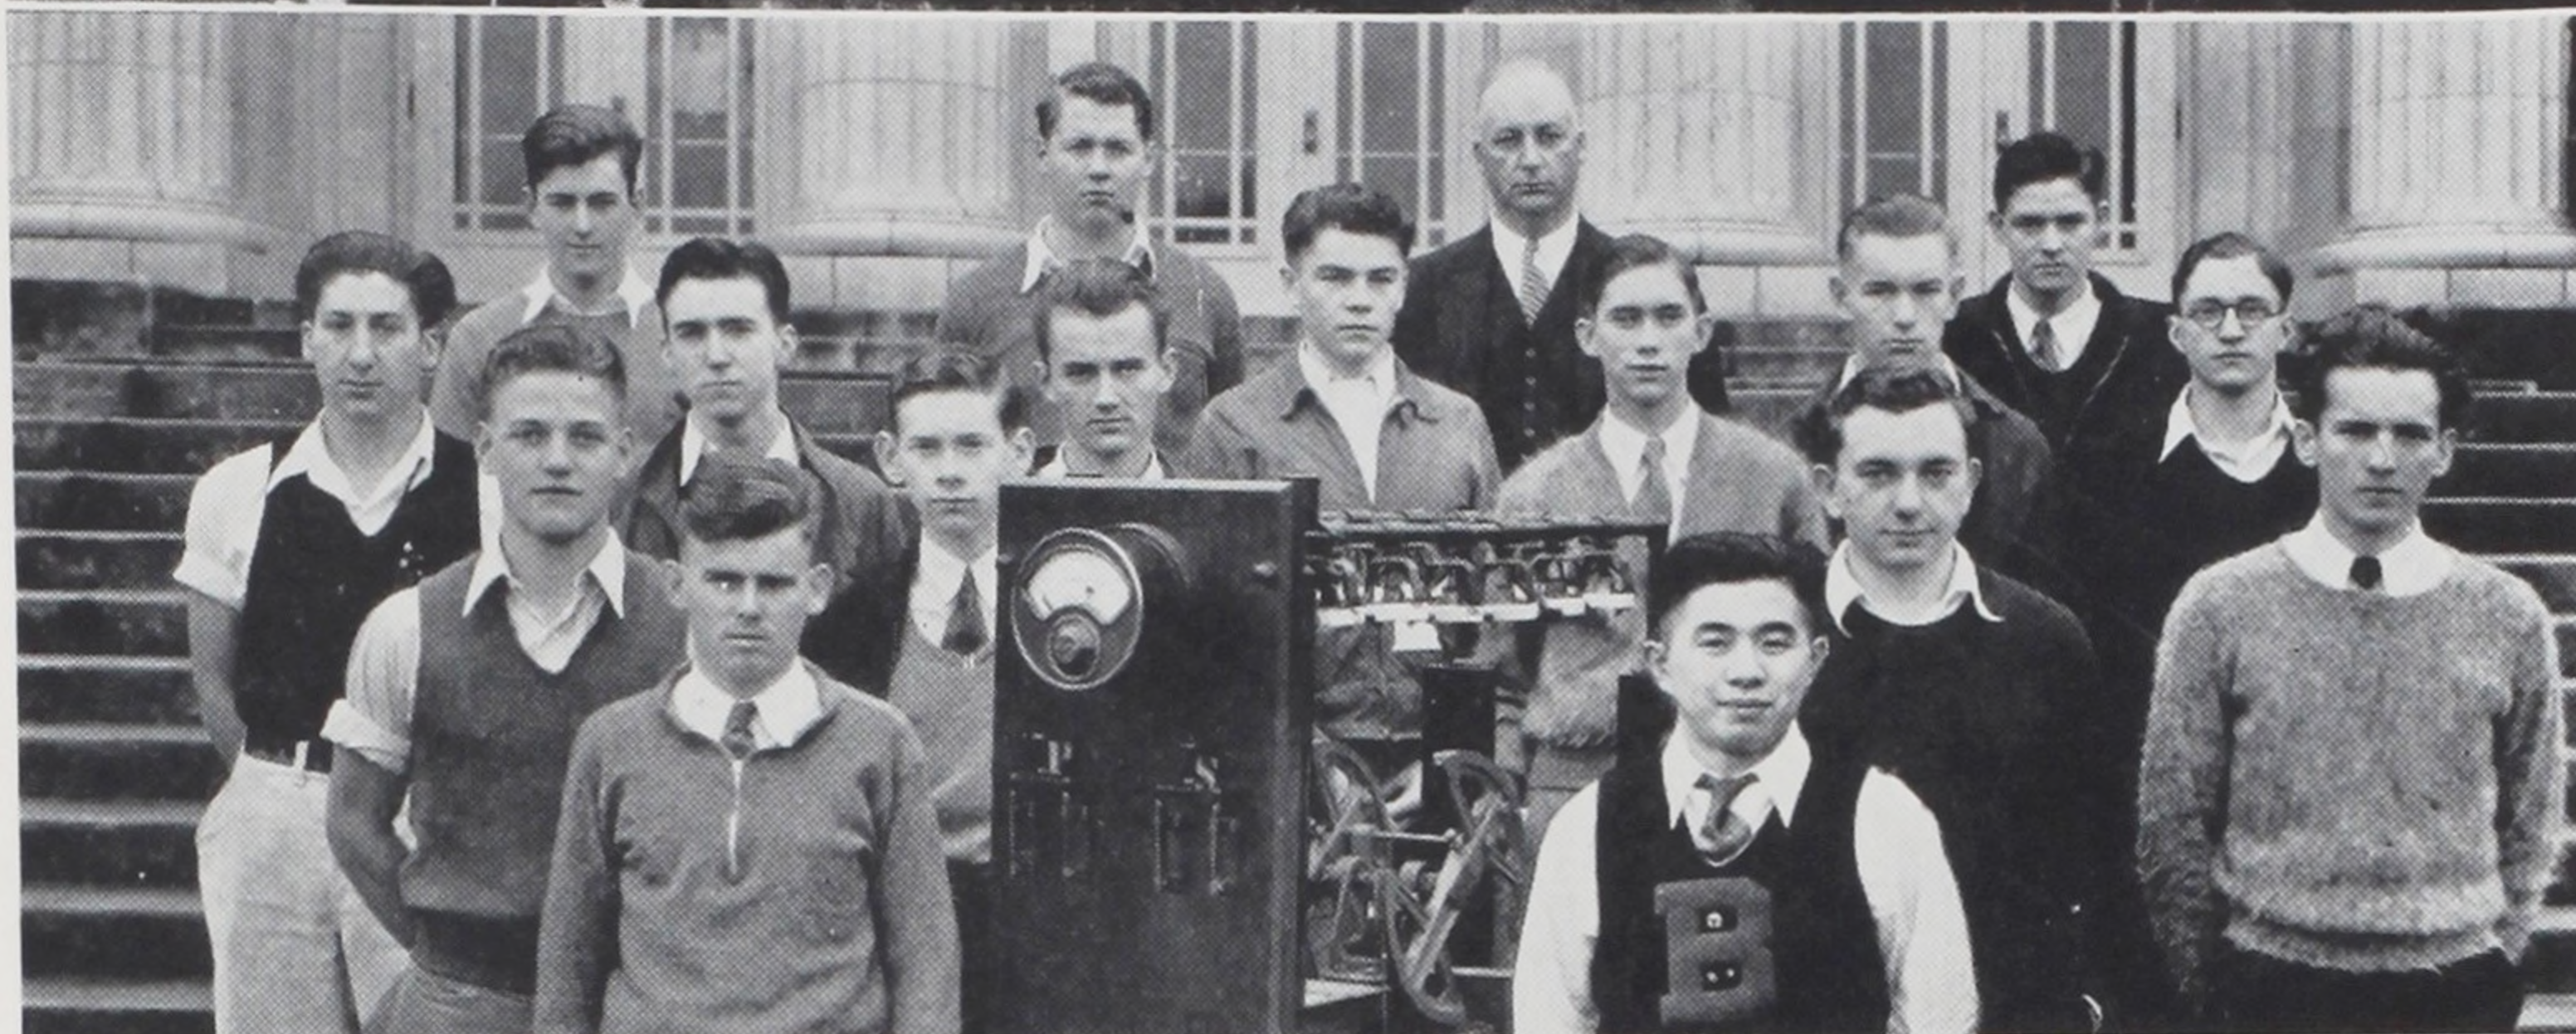

"The tall one was a Mr. Frink. The other one's name began with 'G.' I think it was Garcia."

"All right, thank you, Mrs. Hutton, that will be all for the present. Fitzwater, phone the coroner, and tell him to bring his boys over and clean up this mess."

Tontz went back to the police station, looked up the addresses of Frink and Garcia in the city directory, called on each of them and questioned them, and found that they both admitted being there on the fatal night. However, he found a gun in Garcia's possession so he arrested him. (This being enough evidence to convince this mighty detective that Garcia was guilty) That evening while Tontz was eating dinner at his home, headquarters called him and told him that the good-looking young man named Frink had confessed, saying that he couldn't stand the strain any longer.

"That's fine," said the detective, I knew he was guilty all the time. I was just fooling when I arrested Garcia." (Bubhouse Fables)

And that, my friends, is the story of detective Tontz's greatest (or should I say silliest) case.

Teacher: Willie, if a man saved $2 a week how long would it take him to save $100?

Willie: He could never do it. Long before he'd saved $100 he'd have the money into an auto or somethin'.

Marie: I see they want a superintendent to direct that new public works project—"somebody that can handle men" they say.

Dora: I think they ought to give the job to a woman.

The primary grade teacher had been telling the children all about the wind—its power, its effect, etc. On Friday afternoon she thought she would see how much they had remembered about the subject. So she assumed her most enthusiastic manner and said: "Children, as I came to school today in the trolley-car, the door opened and something came in and softly kissed me on the cheek. What do you think it was?"

The children gleefully answered in one voice: "The conductor!"

Why are you at the station at this unearthly hour?

Well, you see, I never can remember the things I forget until I get to the station, so I allow plenty of time to go back for them.

Hostetter: Is Quiggle what you would call a typical American?

Kumquat: Yes; he likes baseball, is buying an auto on time, has his home mortgaged for more than it is worth, pays alimony and has got seven different kinds of loans from the government.

During the progress of the baby's morning bath a neighbor's little girl came into the room carrying a doll and stood watching the operation for some time in silence. The doll was much the worse for wear, being minus an arm and a leg and generally run down. Finally the little girl inquired: "How long have you had your baby?"

The mother said it was about six months. "My, but you've kept it nice, haven't you?" exclaimed the little girl, in admiration.

Passer-By (to angler): How are the fish in this stream?

Angler: I really don't know. I've been dropping them a line every day, but I haven't got any answer yet.

Girl friend: A truck just ran over your best straw hat, dear!

Fred Decker: That's too bad, and was I wearing it at the time?

Jones: So your friend died poor?

Smith: Yes, quite penniless. You see, he lost his wealth trying to get wealthy; then he lost his health trying to get wealthy; then he lost his wealth trying to get healthy.

Al Norbratten (boarding street car): Well, Noah, is the ark full?

Conductor: Not yet, hop on, we need a monkey!

Mistress (who is giving a grand party) to maid: Mary, you had better not wear any jewelry when you attend table to-night.

Maid: I don't own much jewelry, ma'am, but I thank you for the warning!

Donald Arthur: What does it mean here by "seasoned troops," Dad?

Dad (without hesitation): Mustered by the officers and peppered by the enemy.

Tourist: "What does a small town like this want with a great big hospital?"

Native: "This road has more automobile traffic than any other in the country."

Arnold Schneider: "I ran into another car last week and was knocked senseless."

Girl friend: "How long does the doctor think it will be before you'll be all right?"

"Are we going to try out young Roberts for the football squad?" asked the captain.

"No," replied the coach; "anybody who can spell such words as plenipotentiary, crysipelas and plebiscite is no good as a football player."

Minister: Uncle Ephraim, why don't you get rid of that mule? He seems to bring you nothing but trouble.

Uncle Ephraim: Yessuh, Pahson, Ah knows he makes plenty ob trubble, but Ah hates to gib in. Effen Ah was to trade off dat mule he'd regard it as a pussonel vict'ry. He's been tryin' foh de last six yeahs to get rid ob me.

A new device proves men talk faster than women. Of course—they have to.

Gooberpea: I dreamed last night that the price of gasoline was cut in two.

Dillpick: You better see a doctor, old man. To get such queer ideas shows that your mind is going.

Don McKinley: I suppose I can jump on any one of these cars and go to the Park?

Lester Teschnor: I think you had better not, stranger. A fellow tried to jump on one yesterday and he went to the hospital.

Ed. Brown: "Waiter, I want pork-chops with fried potatoes and have the chops lean."

Waiter: "Yes, sir; which way, sir?"

Stranger: "Is this the best hotel in town?"

Clerk: "Yes. I'm expected to boost, you know."

Stranger: "Well, it may be a boost for the hotel but its no boost for the town."

You may be a fine, upstanding, respectable citizen, but to a banana skin you're just a flop.
